Ingrid Dickhoff

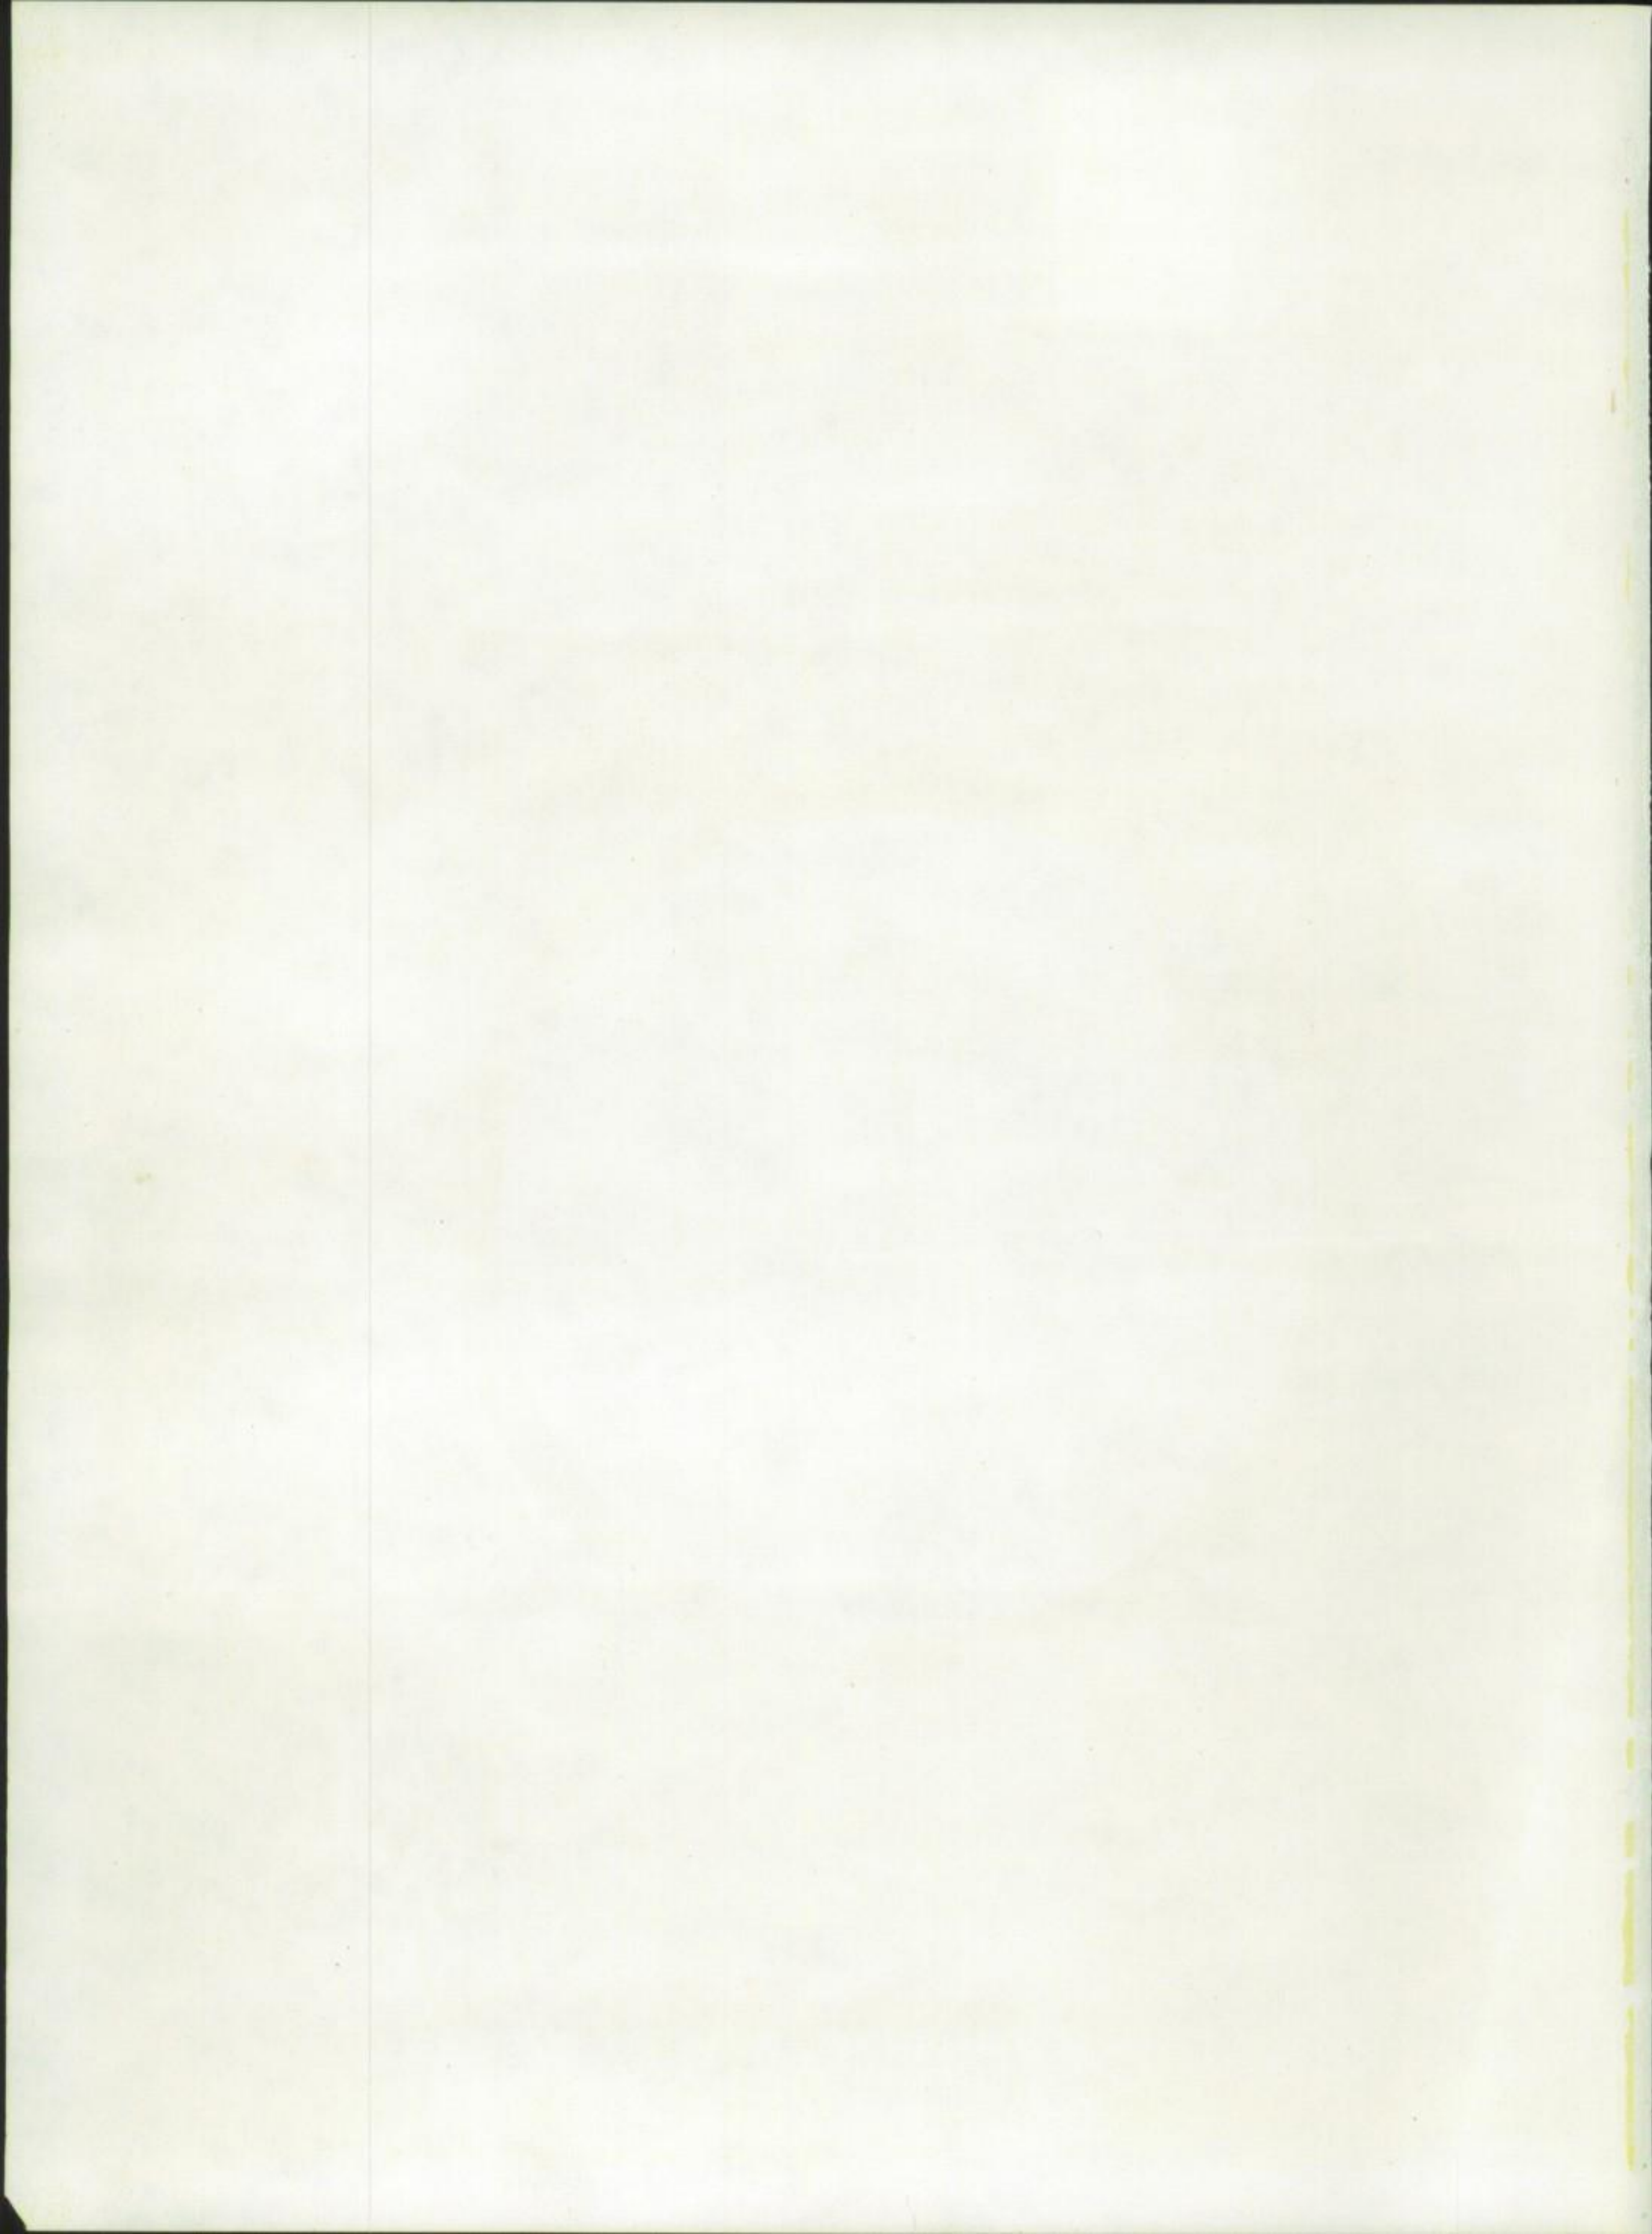

Ingrid
A very special thanks penned to me - for sharing this important part of your life with me - you are super, & a friend - Keep me posted - Best wishes in this big ahead - Similarly,
Dylan

P.S. And hearing about your experiences with Hargraves, what a guy. I'm glad we became friends - you a great person and I hope life treats you great! (I'm sure it will!)

Ingrid,
Well its been fun struggling through psych. and Pre-College writing. We got a chance to "finally" get to know each other better. Especially in psychology. I only wish we could have gotten to know each other sooner! I know you'll do great in college! I won't be able to talk to you about life anymore. Maybe we can get together this summer before we get to go back to school. I'll even miss you poking me in the back and getting yelled at by Doc for talking. (we always missed the lectures!) Thanks for being a friend! Love ya,
It's been a blast! Katie

The cheap but expensive look is back.

Did you ever notice how every year there was always a new style in fashion — one that seemed to be much different from that of the previous year? If you were to take a closer look, however, you would find that these styles are merely a mix of old styles coming back. Through the years, styles have blended to become what we see today.

During the 60's, wild prints, patterns, and colors were all the rage. Uniqueness was the goal for the fashion conscious dresser. As the 70's neared, all that seemed to calm down. Subtle prints took the place of flashy ones, patterns shrank, and colors faded.

In the 80's, the fashion world has developed into a melting pot of past styles. You could now see the penny loafers, letterman jackets and stirrup pants of the 50's, the pointed shoes, long slim skirts and rhinestones of the 60's and the long collared blouses, paisley patterns and bell-bottomed plaid pants of the 70's.

If you've seen people with unique clothes and you've thought they're "new wave" and totally out of the ordinary, stop for a moment and think about what you've said. Fashion is a cycle and we merely perpetuate it. In a few years you may be wearing these same styles.

Trends change like sands through the hourglass, setting the pace for our time. In the 50's, goldfish-swallowing and 3-D movies became national pastimes. People drove Nash Metropolitans and said things like "made in the shade" and "cool". As with all trends, these were short-lived.

The 60's brought many new and exciting trends. The Beatles helped to shape a new generation of music, while another popular trend was becoming active in politics. Doing the "in" thing might have also meant incorporating the "Twiggy-look" or becoming part of the love generation. Anything psychedelic was popular, including art or clothes. Again, these trends had their time, and then became obsolete.

It is often preferred by many to forget the era of Disco, the 70's. Most recent are the trends of the 80's. Convertible sportscars were fashionable this year. Nutra Sweet was all the rage of the weight conscious. For the not so weight conscious, gorging on Dak Imported Danish Butter Cookies became a fundamental

PARTIES DOMINATE NIGHT LIFE AND WEEKEND ADVENTURES AT RHS

Let The Good Times Roll

Improve your burger-building skills at Flaky Jake's.

Big Gulps and chili dogs for breakfast to keep you revvin'.

In years past, Redmond High students had to stay within the confines of our beloved city in order to find places to socialize. This year the concept has changed with student enrollment at RHS being the largest in history. The influx of new students has expanded our entertainment horizons far beyond the Redmond City Limits.

When sampling the finer foods of Redmond, students often flock to places such as McDonald's, Shari's, Wendy's and Pizza Haven. But with the opening of Flaky Jake's, the "build-a-burger" concept has become a popular alternative.

Outside of the "Bicycle Capital of the Northwest", there are many gathering points. For those who enjoy the finer accessories of the good life, "Park Place and Bellevue Square," as Mike Day states, "more than satisfy the shopper's needs."

Seattle's metropolitan atmosphere offers the student a vast array of options. The University District provides a diverse cultural atmosphere, while downtown, the "Laser Fantasy" productions at the Pacific Science Center have earned a reputation as being a truly psychedelic experience.

Perfect. It was the best Homecoming ever." The words of Redmond High's ASB President, Todd Kluger, summed up the overall feelings of Homecoming 1985.

The "Disney Days" activities began with the popular class dress-up days. The mural competition then followed with the canned-food drive, the bonfire and the hilarious class skits.

Friday's Round-up festivities showed great participation by classes and organizations. Honor Society's dunk tank was among the most popular, as was the Spam Club's booth.

Due to the new field, a car caravan through downtown Redmond with the floats replaced the usual halftime parade. The new and exciting activity brought out a lot of student spirit.

Friday night was the big football game against Juanita, ranked 2nd in state. Redmond played hard, but lost nonetheless.

But the halftime show was not spoiled. The band entertained the crowd, followed by the Homecoming Royalty introductions. Kim Warren, 1984's Homecoming Queen, crowned Tami Dyer Homecoming Queen for 1985.

The Senior Princess finalists were Polly Dovin, Michelle Dunlap, Stephanie Humpal, Katie Kuhnley and Stacy Jones, while the titles went to Jill Brenan, Kris Clancy, Cindy Cranston, Tami Dyer, Stacy Gerber, Kris Kane and Angie Olson.

The Royalty, announced at the Homecoming assembly on October 17, were all presented with carnations and the girls received their crowns. Rich Berry was crowned Homecoming King, with the Homecoming was just the right occasion for everyone to dress in their best and dance all night long.

The Redmond High School A.S.B. presented the dance. Abatron put on an outstanding dance, even though it was basically directed to Coke. The RHS cafeteria was brilliantly decorated with different colored streamers and balloons. Around the stage there were two large Coke cans with Coke balloons symmetrically arranged across the front of the stage. In the background ran various Disney cartoon videos. "It was," as A.S.B. Vice President Tami Dyer commented, "a real party atmosphere."

Most of the students started out their evening by dining at their favorite exclusive restaurant. Then, at eight o'clock, they headed off to the dance. Photographers from the Jerome Photography Studios were ready and waiting for the celebrating couples. Toni Fowler remarked, "The dance was awesome! It was the best dance I've ever been to."

HOURS OF WORK PROVE TO BE REWARDING AND EXCITING FOR SENIORS

A Time For Winning

Terrific involvement made Homecoming 1985 a huge success for the Seniors, as their class made a profit of over $500.

The Seniors worked hard and won each competition except the float. Tami Dyer exclaimed, "By far, the Senior Class radiated as the superior class during Homecoming 1985-86."

On dress-up day, the Seniors adorned themselves in pajamas for their theme of "Never Never Land." Redmond High's halls were crowded with an assortment of pajama-wear, pacifiers, stuffed animals and a variety of slippers. The participation on Dress-up Day was fantastic.

The hilarious Senior skit was a bedtime story about a "Juanita Rebel" kidnapping a RHS princess from Never Never Land. Tinkerbell and Peter Pan, with the "Rockers," the "Wavers" and the "Nerds" freed the innocent RHS cheerleader. The participation was excellent; the costumes, outrageous.

The Senior mural, a scene of Never Never Land done by Dave Yosick, was a great work of art. The food drive was the best it has been in years, thanks to Mr. Bain who offered bonus points for cans of food.

"The seniors radiated as the superior class."

The Junior Class had excellent participation," commented Junior Class Advisor, Mrs. D'Amico. The Juniors put a lot of hours into Homecoming and it showed, as they lost the Homecoming competition to the Seniors by only 20 points.

The Juniors' greatest success was their Mickey Mouse Club House float, which won first place. "The float was great. It was terrific to beat the Seniors," said Karen Lauve. The talented artists who painted the impressive Junior mural were Hugh Black, Dave Campbell, Rob Lindenmayer, Pat McMillan and Rich Sipes.

Part of the Juniors' success in the food drive came from giving a candy bar to each student who brought in food, as they collected over 200 cans of food. The Junior Round-up booth made a profit of over $130, selling ice-cream cones, donuts and other tasty treats.

Dress-up day was based on the theme of the Mickey Mouse Club. The participants wore the classic Mickey Mouse ears and t-shirts along with club badges. The Junior skit found Peter Pan helping Annette Funicello escape from the dreaded Captain Hook (a.k.a. the Juanita Rebel), to get back the secret ingredient for Homecoming went extremely well and there was a lot of input on our float, just as we had planned," stated Sophomore Class President Barry Wood.

Even though the Sophomores came in third place for the float, food drive, mural and skit, there was still a lot of participation.

The Sophomore Homecoming theme was "Pirates in the Caribbean." Very few Sophomores dressed up, but their booths' success made up for it, as the Sophomores made over $120. For the food drive, the Sophomore class brought in a total of 80 cans.

The Griswald family visited Disney Land in the Sophomore skit, while Roy Laneville and Erika Haruath painted the Sophomore mural. Barry Wood felt the best part of their Homecoming was the Sophomore float, which was a detailed replica of a pirate ship.

The Sophomore Homecoming Duchess runner-ups were Paige Cassidy, Sarah Eradahl and Jodi Newcomer, and the Duchess was Lisa Knarr. The Sophomore Duke runner-ups included Matt Black, Jeff Cooper and Shane Sykes, while the Cabinet members, Katie Kuhnly and Stephanie Humpel, show concern over the agenda.

Senior year has always been a chance for many seniors to take part in activities. One group who especially contributed to our senior year was the senior cabinet. The senior class officers were: President-Rich Berry, Vice-president-Tim Heyes, Secretary-Kris Kane, Treasurer-Marie Watt, and Senators- Katie Kuhnly and Clint Smith.

Throughout the year the senior officers sponsored many activities. Thanks to the dedication of the officers and cabinet members the Senior Class took first place in all competitions except the float in Homecoming. Throughout the football season, the Seniors operated the concession stand in order to make money for senior activities. The success of the concession stand was owed to Stephanie Humpal for the time she put into it. When asked about her responsibilities Stephanie stated, "We put together the most successful money making venture in Redmond High School history."

Not only did the officers put together

"Responsibility comes with the job,"

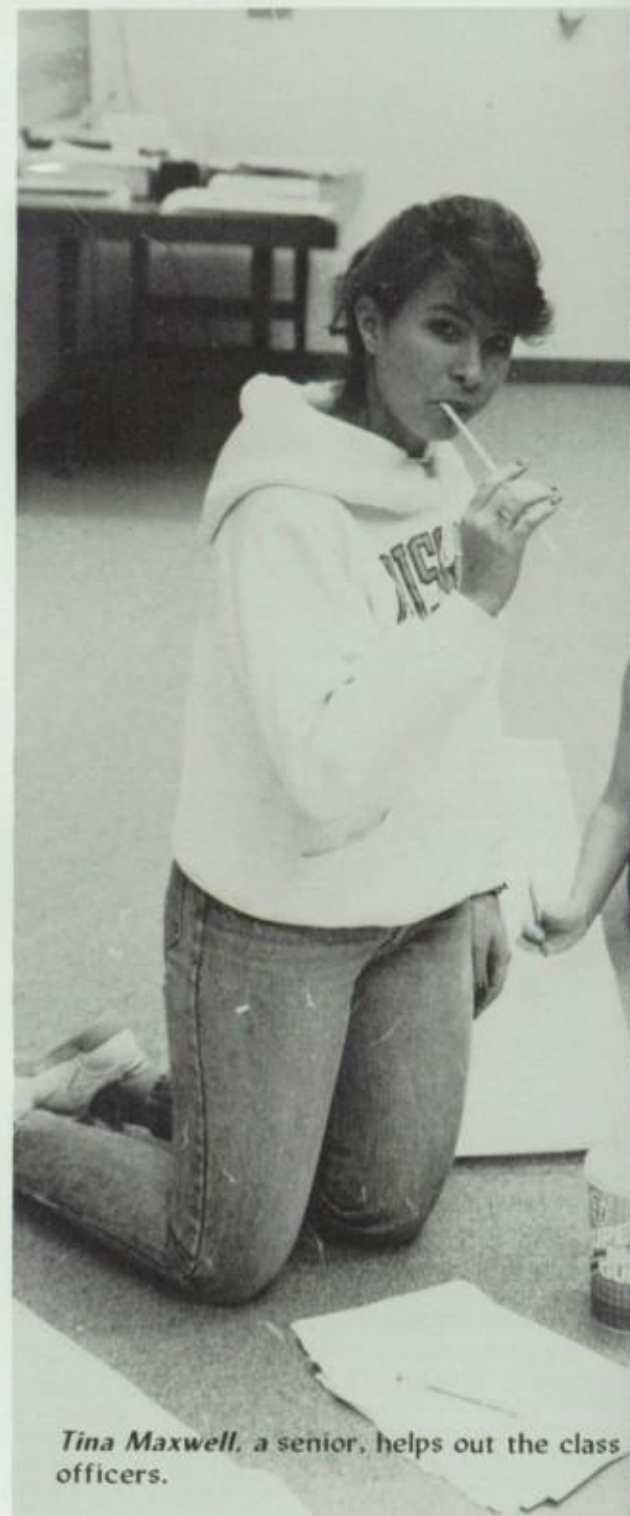

-Katie Kuhnly

Homecoming, they also organized a spectacular prom. Hurray for the officers!

 Highlights: It started about 3 yrs. ago. We came to a school unknown to us. Oh yes, we had friends before us and had left friends behind. But yet, we were the Class of '86. We came, we saw, and won the hearts of many. Yes, we leave our mark on RHS as no other has before and we are proud of that. Happily, we are glad to leave. Yet, a sadness may still linger in some hearts. We have done it. All that is left are the pictures of friends and good times. We have made many friend here, and yes, some enemies. That's life. For now it is our time to leave. So for now and until a later time when we come together again. Farewell, I will miss it greatly and it will always be a memory of great times and beautiful people. Au revoir With Love ...

J.D. Schampera and George Dyer are in a daze thinking about their next fundraiser.

Mellanie Bull and J.D. Schampera get into the spirit of things.

The junior class officers of 1985-86 demonstrated their participation and spirit throughout the year, which helped their class become more involved in activities. The officers were: J.D. Schampera, President; George Dyer, Vice President; Mellanie Bull, Secretary; Jon Bean, Treasurer; and Shane Carnahan and Ann Tallman, Senators.

Throughout Homecoming, the class of '87 spent long hours preparing for the week's festivities. The hours payed off in the end as the Juniors won first place float with the theme of the "Mickey Mouse Club". "I thought we pulled everyone together as a class very well to make it a successful homecoming," stated George Dyer. "I was impressed with the outcome of our efforts," said J.D. Schampera.

One of the Juniors' big fund raisers was a dance in November. It proved to be very profitable.

The class of '87 has always been involved in sports and has continued this year. Many of them start on teams and are doing very well.

Most of the Juniors are proud of their class and are happy with the accomplish-

Jeff asks Barry for a demonstration on how to kiss a girl.

We're a close knit group," says Sophomore Class President Barry Wood, referring to the Sophomore Class officers. His fellow officers consist of Vice President Sarah Erdahl, Secretary Jeni Fitch, and Treasurer Jeff Cooper.

The officers concentrated on uniting the Sophomore Class. "It's hard to start the year when the class of '88 has merged from three junior high schools. We're so big and diverse," said Sarah.

The first opportunity for Sophomores to get to know each other was during Homecoming. Everyone was encouraged to join a committee and get involved. Although it took awhile to get the hang of things, the Sophomores ended up with a good skit, a float resembling a ship off the high seas, and delicious shish-ka-bobs sold at their booth.

To welcome the new year the sophomores sponsored an immensely successful dance. The entire student body enjoyed themselves.

The officers were the first sophomores included in the RHS ASB retreat to Poulsbo. They were also present at Natural Helpers in December.

Administration

To breed a winner, it takes much time and hard work. The Redmond High School Administrative and Counseling departments each depict these qualities. Both departments have challenging paths ahead of them and hope to find successful students at the finishing line.

Counselors Freddie Denton, Marylin Hargraves, Anita Page and Chuck Telford all agree that the low counselor to student ratio, the increasing amount of paperwork necessary to prepare students for collegiate life, and the new pressures confronting today's high school student pose the greatest challenges to their department.

Further down the halls, the Administrative offices are busy handling the parking situation and the concerns voiced by students and staff. The Administrative team has continued to incorporate innovative educational techniques into the school's curriculum. These techniques include "study-skill" notebooks and thinking exercises. Principal Tom Murphy explained, "The more diversity and organization students can bring to their thought pro-

Through their hard work and innovation, Redmond High School's Administrative and Counseling departments are breeding tomorrow's winners, today!

English Department

Controversial newspapers, thesis termpapers and debates were among the many new and unique elements of RHS's English Department in the 1985-86 school year. The year began with the unanimous Annual Staff approval of the 1985-86 annual theme, "The Best of Times." The complex machinery of the Annual Staff was set into motion.

On other journalistic fronts, the "Blaze" staff was breaking new grounds with the school newspaper. Never forgotten will be the controversial Christmas issue of 1985. Praised by many for its colorful splendor and creative style while criticized by the more stern individuals at RHS for its questionable subject matter, the December 1985 Blaze caused more of a stir at RHS than had been seen all year.

Walt Binz, Drama advisor, led the RHS drama classes in producing the plays "Up the Down Staircase", and "Dracula".

The RHS Debate Club opened the year with a new look, new members and a new style. Lincoln-Douglas debates (with one-person teams) were new in the Debate Club's curriculum this year. Dr. Salisbury, Debate Club advisor, stated, "The intro-

S.S. Department

The Social Studies department went through a change of emphasis this year. In the past, students have associated social studies with history alone and nothing else. Yet for the 1985-86 school year, the department staff decided it was time for a change. The decision was made this year to place more of an emphasis on government and politics, both American and foreign. Considering such American problems as the federal and trade deficits and world-affecting issues as the Middle East, it was felt that an effort should be made to explain these problems.

Through the study of American and foreign governments it was hoped that the students would gain an understanding of these issues that affect us all. To reach this goal, the curriculum was expanded to include courses such as World Today and Middle East. Psychology covers the mental side of life, and of course the department still teaches history.

U.S. History and Government, World Studies, American Studies, and World Survey are classes on the history end of the social studies operation. Social studies is more than just history; and with the new emphasis on politics and government, the department has everything in the world covered.

Math Department

Redmond High School is honored with a very demanding Math Department. It is headed by Mr. Magdall, and has very helpful teachers including: Mr. Magdall, Mr. Mattson, Mrs. Carpenter, Mr. Hargraves, Mrs. Hunter, Mr. Barret, Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Schaible and Mr. Gillespie. These teachers are noted for helping their students achieve, by being there for both before and after school help. The Math Department has all levels of mathematics. It includes Basic Skills for sophomores, first and second level Algebra, Geometry, Intermediate Algebra, Intermediate Algebra with honors, Math Analysis, Calculus and Senior Math. The class sizes usually vary depending upon enrollment. The class size usually averages about twenty-eight students. Mr. Hargraves believes that it is the best department in Redmond High School, and the best Math Department at the high school level.

P.E. And Health

When students think of the Physical Education program at RHS, P.E. is usually the only subject considered. Most students overlook the fact that the Health classes at Redmond are also a part of the P.E. department.

There are two health classes at RHS: Senior Health which is required for graduation, which provides a broad perspective on many health topics from sex education to financial health. Advanced Health, which is offered only second semester, delves deeper into the interesting topics in health. Field trips and observing of actual operations highlight the Advanced Health curriculum.

As a Sophomore one must take at least one semester of P.E., but two semesters are needed by the time of graduation. The other semester of P.E. can be taken at any time, and there is quite a choice of classes. Recreational Sports offers four sections of various sporting events. An aerobics class was added this year for those who want to improve their cardiovascular fitness, strength and flexibility.

Business Department

The Business Department at Redmond High School underwent a great number of changes over the past year as technology has increased. The business classes offered at Redmond include accounting, computers, business math, business law, business english, DECA, typing, keyboarding and business machines.

"The goal of our department this year was to offer electronic typewriting and word processing to all students in our advanced classes," stated department chairperson, Donna Ward. This year the department was trying to offer the latest technology in word processing, computers and electronic typewriters.

Many students get involved in the business classes to receive one of the four Certificates of Proficiency offered to students successfully completing the required courses in a specific area. The four areas include accounting, business sales, marketing and secretarial.

This year the Business Department offered a full curriculum in accounting, typewriting and business to prepare students who plan to get a job upon graduation or major in the business field in college. Business is an important area for students to know and under-

In 1980, the Science Department had four staff members: Mrs. Piltaver, Mr. Peeples, Mr. Nelson, and Mrs. Evans who has since left. Today, the department consists of ten members, adding Mr. Roberts, Mr. Chesler, Mrs. Ahten, Mrs. Haas, Mr. Town, Mrs. McCartney, and aide Shellagh Schafer. According to department head Mr. Nelson, the teaching staff is outstanding. They have a great interest in the welfare of their students.

The Science Department offers a wide variety of classes, more than just Biology, Chemistry, or Physics. Students may take honor courses in these classes too. The electives offered include Marine Biology, Astronomy, Geology, Horticulture, Human Physiology and First Aid.

Improving problem solving skills, offering a large variety of electives, and improving communication between department teachers were some of the goals set by the Science Department at the beginning of the year.

Foreign Language

We were lucky to have so many talented foreign language teachers. Mrs. Orumchian, the third and fourth year French teacher has studied six languages, and is fluent in three! Sarah Hett commented, "She was really patient and supportive!" Cheryl DeShon added, "I hope to do as much with my life as she has done with hers."

Mr. Chandler, one of the three Spanish teachers, has visited both Mexico and Spain! "He always took time to help me out," remembers Chris Comstock.

Mr. Tran was the first and second year French teacher. Before coming to Redmond he lived in Vietnam speaking French.

Mr. Lewinson, the only German teacher is also popular with his students. As Sara

Mr. Walker taught Spanish first semester. Melany Bull and John Bean described him as "Muy simpatico y interesante."

Yet another excellent Spanish teacher was Mr. Starret. Sheri McBride remarked

The Redmond Mustangs Football Team had an outstanding season in 1985. The team galloped to six wins and only three losses, the best record ever achieved by a Redmond football team. The Mustangs played on the new astroturf field, the best of its kind in the state. This field was a huge improvement over last year's field, and the Stangs were timely by performing above everyone's except the team's expectations. Most players spent much time in the weight room and on the field before the season, and so set the stage for their excellent year. The 1985 season included new team records for the number of wins in a season (6) as well as the longest winning streak (4). Another thing that made this season special was the fans. Because of a beautiful new set of bleachers, a new two-story press box, a new concession stand, and most of all the Stangs' spectacular season, the attendance at each home game averaged several thousand people. The team also had a great support at the away games, which was something new. This unprecedented fan support undoubtedly helped the team to victory. Congratulations to the Mustangs for a truly awesome season — a timely one that will live in the record books for years to come.

The 1985-86 boys cross-country season was a season that will stay in the minds of Coach Jim Zatloukal's runners for the rest of their lives.

The team had tremendous talent. Seniors Carl Berg and Cleave Odegard led the team with strong leadership while Juniors Stormy Shouman, Dave Washburn, Craig Hanson, Craig Potter, Jeff DuLong and Sophomores Jeff Allison and Derek Munson added great strength to the overwhelming power of the Mustang team. The team raced to an undefeated duel meet season, extending their consecutive duel meet wins to 62.

The boys went on to win their fifth straight King-Co title and their fourth straight District title. They topped off the season by racing in Spokane on three inches of snow and mud to capture the King-Co league's first boys cross-country state title.

Shouman, who was voted most valuable runner, broke records in each event as the King-Co, District, and State Champion. He was also named the Sammamish Valley News boys athlete for the season. Team captains for the year were Carl Persistence and determination alone are the keys to success and unfortunately we lost both," stated Kivohn Tucker, the varsity volleyball coach.

The 1985 volleyball team ended a difficult season with a very deceiving 2-17 record. Deceiving because it said nothing about the talent contained in the group of 12 varsity and 12 j.v. players.

"The talent was there but it was hard to make everything come together," said Kristal Kattien, the girls captain.

In an attempt to inspire other players and reward those who proved their excellence in the sport, j.v. coach Evans from Rose Hill Junior High and Tucker distributed Players of the Week awards. Recipients of these were: Kim Miles (V), Kristal Kattien (V), Sylvia Holler (V), Amy

This year's team worked together as a unit", explained Darron Losse, one of the golf team's two returning players this year. This unity helped the team have a successful season following the loss of their top two players from last year.

The team began slowly, but showed great improvement as the year progressed. Home matches were played at Sahalee Country Club. The team was victorious at all three of their home matches, and ended the season with a 3-4 record.

At the end of the season, through dedication, growing confidence, unity, and the help of Coach Magdall, the team was able to take first place in the Medalist Tournament. This tournament consists of teams throughout the Kingco League. Junior Brian Clark stated, "Towards the end

1985 was an exciting year for the Redmond High Girls' Tennis team. The large turnout of highly skilled players made making a player ladder very difficult. Coaches Mrs. Houtz and Mrs. Hunter solved this problem by alternating middle players. Senior Clare Painter had this to say: "We had good people this year! It wasn't easy to distinguish between the top and bottom players."

Longtime team rival Lake Washington was finally beaten this season. Nicole Petrich remarked, "It was a hard match, but it was rewarding when we won."

Julie Stevens, Carmen Foster and Jenny Kennelly qualified for the Kingco championships. Julie felt, "It was neat to represent RHS." Each played two rounds before they were eliminated by close losses.

Many matches turned out to be grueling battles between the opposing players.

Cheryl DeShon, remembering her duel with a Bothell player said, "Bothell really likes to play long, long matches, but I don't!" She won nonetheless.

Unfortunately, in sports, a teams record does not always accurately reflect the teams skill and dedication. Such was the case with the girls swimming team.

The team, coached by Don Burton, needed at least 21 swimmers just to fill all the spaces in a meet. However, only 11 swimmers and one diver turned out this year. Although they lost all of their meets, they did come within three points of a victory. As Stephanie Bartron said, "We didn't have quantity, but we had quality."

And a quality team it was! Despite the teams small size, they sent one individual, Barbi Blaylock, to state for the backstroke, and one medley relay team. The team was made up of Barbi Blaylock, Lisa Schneider, Erin Sweet and Karen Lauve.

The future for the team looks bright. Many of the girls were only juniors this year. Returning swimmers added to new recruits could really improve the team's standing next year. As for this year, Ann

It's been an incredible year," said swimmer Aaron Lukoff. The Redmond boys swimming team indeed had an incredible season in 1985-86.

"This year's goal for the team," according to Weston Roth, "was to have our best record ever." The team worked hard all season, and through dedication, was able to achieve this goal.

The strength of the team was a major contribution to their success this year. In addition to having the best record ever, the team was able to send some of its best swimmers to the state competition. One of the qualifying swimmers, Mark Ayton explained, "We had a stronger team than we've had in the past. We were more successful this year."

A great deal of credit, according to the swimmers, must go to their coach, Don Burton. Mark remarked, "There wasn't a lot of pressure from our coach, he just asked that we do our best."

Coach Burton's techniques paid off. This year's swimming team was a success and the members were talented. Hopefully this success will travel on to future teams, along with Aaron Lukoff's "Kobi-ball."

The RHS girls' basketball teams led by Varsity coach Dick Nelson and j.v. coach Todd Peterson brought the act of rising to the occasion to a refined art.

The varsity team, led by notables such as all-district selections Joanne Schroedel and Melissa Bohm, amazed Kingco analysts by placing third in their division with an 11-14 record. The team went on to defeat power-houses such as Bellevue at the districts tournaments, but the Redmond balloon was eventually diffused by Sammamish. It was a heartbreaking loss to the winningest season in Redmond history.

Forward Cyndi Bickerstaff attributed the team's success to their strong dedication throughout the season.

The 1985-86 wrestling team had a great season. The dedication of the team was obvious: most of the team started training before the season actually began. Several wrestlers attended a wrestling camp over the summer, while others lifted weights or jogged. As a result, the team was prepared and in shape for the season.

Coach Dave Mattson helped lead the wrestlers to a successful year. Craig Elsner said, "He made us work harder, and gave the team a feeling that made us strive further." Coach Mattson also stressed team stability, individualism, and mental strength.

Team-wise, the wrestlers didn't accomplish as much as they wanted but many of the wrestlers improved and accomplished a lot. Several wrestlers went to KingCo, regionals, and state. Mike Rogers, D. Schampera, Garth Kuykendall, and

The gymnastics team flipped and tumbled its way through another exciting season in 1985-86. Although the team was relatively small, they competed credibly against older, more experienced teams.

Two bright new additions to the Redmond gymnastics program were the Phillips sisters—Noelle and Michelle. Noelle, a senior, was competing in her first season of high school gymnastics. Although she was expected to do very well at King-Co and State, her season ended tragically when she broke her arm.

But her younger sister, Michelle, a sophomore, brought Redmond a piece of gymnastic glory. She was hailed by all at an all-school assembly for placing ninth in the state meet on the uneven parallel bars.

ACTIVITIES

1985-86 ASB RUNS LIKE CLOCKWORK

ASB Sparks Spirit

Melanie Bull adds some food.

As the 1985-86 school year rolled around, the ASB had three major goals in mind for the following months. They were 1) improving communication between ASB officers and the student body, 2) start new traditions, and 3) get everyone involved in school activities which, in turn promotes more school spirit.

In a collective effort of President Todd Kluger, Vice President Tami Dyer, Secretary Shawnee Manwaring, Treasurer James Dailey and Parliamentarian Staci Jones these goals began to take shape during the year.

One of the major activities of ASB this year, was the Christmas Food Drive, with each homeroom providing for one family. It proved to be a beneficial effort and positive event. Along with the food drive, ASB was a major reason Homecoming '85 was so spectacular. With the different tasks divided evenly between the officers it made Homecoming '85 an event to remember. The major reason Homecoming was successful was best stated by Secretary Shawnee Manwaring, "Because people were willing to get involved at Homecoming, it was a spectacular success!"

What is a rebel? A rebel is defined as one who resists an accepted convention. This definition fits no person better than Lee McFarlane. Lee was just one of the many innovations brought to R.H.S. cheerleading by first year Advisor Judy Houtz.

Upon arrival, Houtz divided the entire group of twelve cheerleaders into two squads consisting of six members each. The first season squad cheered for the Fall sports teams, while the second season squad handled the winter sports. Both squads united to cheer at assemblies.

The addition of a Mustang mascot added a touch of humor to the football games. The identity of the person under the costume will always remain a mystery.

Undoubtedly, the most noticeable cheerleader had to be the strong, well-built individual with the profoundly deep voice. Of course it was Lee McFarlane. "Lee's presence on the squad gave us a new dimension of power," said Julie Muenze. His added strength enabled the squad to perform many perilous stunts and magnificent formations.

All these factors combined to make RHS's cheerleading captivating as well as motivating.

MARCHING TO A DIFFERENT DRUMMER

RHS Band Keeps In Time

Mr. Kittler leads the band in harmonious sound.

The Redmond High School Band had an active and changing year in 1985-86. Because of the growth of RHS, there were two bands this year: the Symphonic Band for the more advanced musicians, and another band basically for sophomores. By having more than one band, band director, Kay Kittler, was able to control the instrumentation that fed into the Symphonic Band. The end product was a better quality band with a variety of musicians in each instrumental section.

Behind the leadership of officers John Williams, Scott Allen, Debbie Bennetsen and Larry Fransson, the band was successful in many fundraisers. The students earned money through grapefruit sales, orange sales, and even car washes. The money raised went towards a Spring Concert Tour.

The Homecoming half time show was also one of the band's big events. The show was put together by Mike Case, the band's drum major, and Bill Cozart.

The RHS Symphonic Band did very well at the KingCo contest in May. According to band director Kittler, "The whole new attitude about music among band members was the

Jazz Band

The 1985-86 Jazz Band had a very successful year, playing at various places. Early in the year they performed for the Rotary Club, later the Viking Jazz Festival in Paulsbo Washington, and toward the end of the year they participated in the Kingco Jazz Festival. Among these activities they found time to play before the school at the band concerts.

The Jazz Band consisted of a dedicated group of 25 students. They met and practiced before school every morning. "It takes a personal dedication to wake up at 5:00 a.m. every morning to do something you don't have to do, but I enjoy playing," said Karen Quirk. "With Mr. Kittler's help we improved a great deal and we had a lot of fun!"

In the past four years the band has had three different directors. Kay Kittler took over in the fall of 1983, and has remained ever since. "He is a good instructor," his students say, "and he has accomplished a lot in the past three years."

Redmond High had reason to be proud of its Concert Choir and Mixed Choir for all of the things they have done this year.

Early in the year the Concert Choir received an invitation from the Attached Middle School in Beijing China to stay in the student dorms and perform a repertoire of American folk songs at each city they would visit. The students jumped at the chance and set out to earn enough money. Benefit Concerts were scheduled into the year's agenda. Donations were collected from nearby businesses. The Choir went to Physio Control as carolers during the Christmas season and then held a Thank You Concert for their large contribution. Later in the year the Nine Dragons Restaurant hosted one of the Choir's most productive benefit Concerts. As a result of all of their effort the trip was finally confirmed. The trip was set for March twenty-ninth through April thirteenth.

Five of the Choir members went to King Co. Never before had that many Redmond students participated in such a prestigious event. The five were Samantha Patch, Tim Miles, Mike Marchione, Steve McCart, and Rob Campbell. Steve was the first place soloist, and so went to state. Congratulations Singers!

Teresa Olding, president of the 1985-86 Swing Choir, felt the class was a good learning experience. "Not only did we sing together, but we learned to grow and work with one another," she said.

The members of Swing Choir had to meet special criteria. First, the students had to be enrolled in Concert Choir. Then they auditioned for Mr. Hardin, choir teacher. "Swing Choir has extremely high demands. The students must be dedicated," claimed Mr. Hardin.

Twenty students made up Swing Choir, who performed 30 to 50 times this year. The majority of the performances were for clubs such as the Lions, Rotary, and Kiwanis. They also entertained at luncheons for senior citizens.

But the Swing Choir did more than sing; they had their own instrumental section. Teresa plays the flute, Roger Taylor strums on his guitar, and Scott Moore, the group's only

The Swing Choir members for 1985-86 were Gwen Audent, Caryn Caldwell, Stacey Pen-nock, Marcie Tudor, Dawn Kasen, Kris Magnusson, Allison Taggert, Teresa Olding, Amy Peterson, Samantha Patch, Mike Marchione, Sylvia Barrett, played impressively by Jeanette Braaten and Shawnee Manwaring, just graduated from college and has landed her first job as a teacher at Calvin Coolidge High School. In front of her lay resentment, unwillingness, and rude behavior that she had never been prepared for in her strict educational background.

As the months proceeded Ms. Barrett learned to accept the situation and begins to adjust to the kids learning habits and start becoming their friend. At one point Ms. Barrett had to make a decision. She felt that she wasn't the right person for the job and that maybe she should

In the end Ms. Barrett continued with teaching and earned the respect and love of the kids.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB INVESTIGATES NEW LANDS

RHS Gets Culture

International Club discusses their next country.

The 1985-86 school year was filled with many challenges for the RHS International club. Directed by Mrs. Orumchian, the goals of the club were to provide a cultural exchange with other countries for their members. The International Club met during activity periods, during which the officers presented a new country to focus on. The country was decided upon by the officers with the suggestions of the members. The officers presented the chosen country on a bulletin display. The members oriented the meetings around discussing this country, its people, and the cultural aspects.

The International Club had about thirty-five members, and grew steadily. The International Club officers consisted of: Kyaa Heller, President; Andy Han, Vice President; Claressa Rolloazo, Secretary; Kazu Hoshiai, Treasurer; and Carrie Morgan, Fundraising Chairperson.

The International Club hoped to expand in the school and the community. The club was in its beginning stages this year, and the members hoped it would once grow to one of Redmond High Schools largest and most important activities.

...ll those in favor of Mr. Hargraves for teacher of the month.

The Honor Society of the 1985-86 school year had an active year, despite the loss of the first semester activity periods due to the snow. Mrs. Hardin and Mrs. Burleigh were the advisors, and the Cabinet members were: Molly Adams, President; Julie Muenze, Vice President; Stephanie Graves, Secretary; and Randy Partee, Treasurer.

There were approximately one-hundred juniors and seniors in Honor Society who maintained a 3.5 grade point average. At the beginning of second semester of each year the eligible sophomores are invited to join.

The Honor Society functioned on a point system. A senior graduating in 1986 would need eight points to receive his Honor Society cord. For sophomores and juniors, a minimum of four points per semester were required to remain in Honor Society, and they would then need a total of twenty points to receive their Honor cord. One can obtain these points by helping with publicity, working at these events, and by just attending the meeting.

The Honor Society was involved this year with the Teacher of the Month Program, the Dunk Tank and one dance.

Chess Club Moves

Paul Wilkinson is encouraged to an impressive victory.

The 1985-86 Chess Club.

In most individuals, the word "chess" evokes thoughts of up-tight old men smoking cigars and playing this intense board game. Redmond High, however, has its very own Chess Club. The club has approximately ten active members, including Tor Hagen, Randy Creek, Brian Fox and Paul Wilkinson. Tor Hagen is the team captain, and when asked about the Chess Club, he responded, "Chess gives me a chance to relax and think about world problems. Chess is my life."

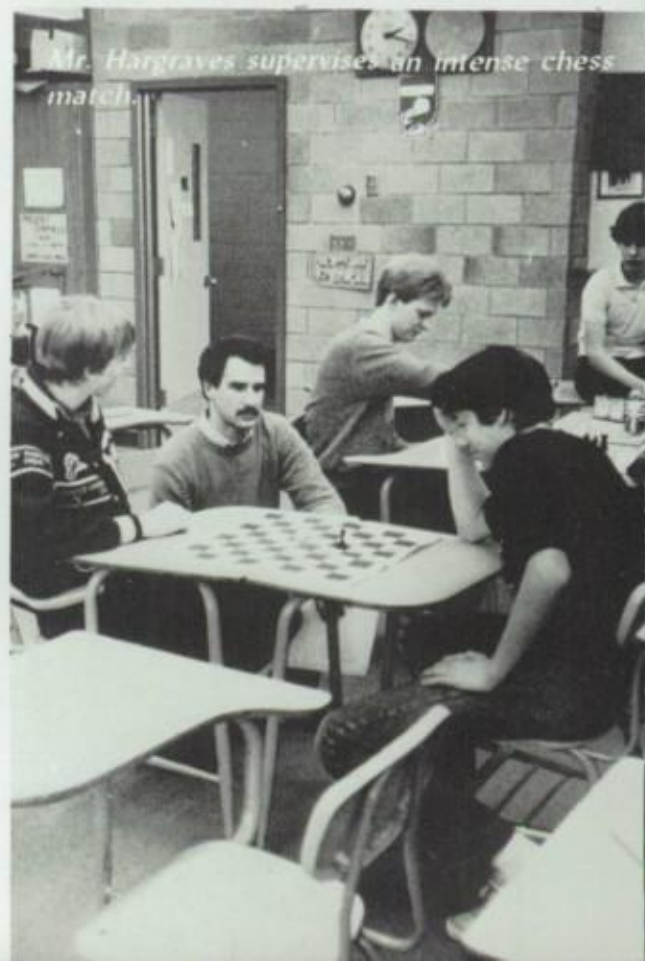

The 1985-86 Chess Club consisted of both a varsity and junior varsity team. The members met three times a week for practice matches. On many occasions an intensely heated match could be found continuing for upwards of three hours.

The Chess Club had a very good year. Advisor, Sandy Hargraves, is looking forward to continued success, although many prominent players graduated. The young talent on the team does show promise for the years to come, however.

There was only one club for those analytical people who wanted a thought-provoking and challenging experience, the RHS Debate club. If there was a controversial issue to be found, the Debate Club would argue it. The Redmond High Debate Club consisted of twenty-one dedicated intellectuals who enjoyed a good argument. This year's Debate Club organized and took part in many activities and competitions. One important event for the club members was "Candidate Night," this was a debate forum for local candidates, organized by the Debate Club members. The Debate Club competed in four tournaments this year. Every member had the opportunity to compete. However, it was not required. In the end, about two thirds of the group wished to participate. When asked to comment on the club, Aaron Lukoff said, "I don't know how I would have survived the year without being able to argue with someone."

SKI CLUB PLANS GO DOWNHILL, TRIPS CANCELLED BY DISTRICT

A Waste Of Time?

Although some restrictions changed and forced the cancellation of many plans, the RHS Ski Club has survived.

The ski season approached and the Ski Club began activities. Trips to resorts like Mt. Hood and Schwietzer were planned, and fund raisers were set into motion.

But then, disaster struck. The Lake Washington School District decided that the club was not covered by insurance and therefore could not go on trips. According to Ms. Hunter, the club advisor, the members responded with "shock, anger, and resentment." Much time had been spent preparing for future trips, and suddenly these plans were ruined.

"I was really mad!" exclaimed Darron Losse, the Ski Club treasurer.

The curriculum was changed and time was spent getting together with friends that had a common interest: skiing.

The club is now funded by a parent booster organization that raises money for trips outside of school. Next year's club will have the opportunity to go on ski trips because of this group.

"The officers worked hard to keep the Participation, enthusiasm, and involvement all described this year's marketing program. Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) was bigger and better than ever.

This year, DECA had the largest enrollment ever, totalling 285 members. Ten marketing classes and three teachers accomadated this amount. Mrs. Goodwin was added this year and Mrs. Maijala returned from last year.

The conferences this year were fun and at the same time informative. Trips were taken to Spokane, Bellevue Community College, New York, Bellevue, Seattle, and Cheyenne, Wyoming. One-hundred twenty members participated in the Area II Competition in Seattle and Redmond won 40 awards, the most out of 13 schools.

The addition of soft drinks and candy increased the Student Store profits considerably. Fundraisers such as the gift wrap, the pumpkin carving contest, and the sales of chocolate Santas all contributed to DECA profits. This made confer-

SU.D.D.S. (Students Understanding Drinking and Drugging Students) works inside and out of Redmond High in order to promote natural high activities and concentrates on keeping the well kids well," according to advisor Pat Carpenter. The students involved in S.U.D.D.S. learned to work with others with drug and alcohol problems.

There were many S.U.D.D.S. activities throughout the year. Probably the biggest activity was the Operation Streetwise promotion. S.U.D.D.S. members sold sweatshirts and T-shirts to students, helping Redmond High, out of all other AAA schools, to sell the most shirts. RHS got a free dance and $500 was given to the ASB. S.U.D.D.S. also sponsored Natural High Week in the spring. This included the Marathon Dance, the pie-eating contest, Teacher's Breakfast, and the assembly. "The purpose of Natural High Week was to promote school unity, a positive attitude, and just have a good time," exclaimed S.U.D.D.S. member Jen Niehaus.

The biggest . . . was the Operation Streetwise promotion.

The official SPAM club trademark makes a statement anywhere.

To most students at RHS the word SPAM means "Pork Shoulder-Ham." But to a quite unique group of individuals at RHS, SPAM signifies, "Students Protesting Against Mediocrity."

Sponsored in spirit by Hormel, the inaugural edition of the "SPAM Club" was among the most active clubs at RHS this year. Commenting on how awe-inspiring the SPAM Club was when compared with the rest of RHS, Randy Partee noted, "The SPAM Club was the best thing to happen to Redmond since Spandex."

The SPAM Club was the brain-child of math teacher/comedian Sandy Hargraves. The offices created to run the huge, complex machinery of the club were Grand Poobah Spam, Sort of Head Spam, Spam Collector, Spam Calligrapher, Spam Senator and Founding Father Spams. But even more original than the SPAM officers, were the clubs activities. The SPAM Clubs skit, "SPAMBO," highlighted the Homecoming assembly, and "SPAM on a Stick" was a big favorite at the Homecoming booths. SPAM Week in March was one of many zany SPAM activities in 1985-86.

The 1985-86 Annual Staff.

The annual staff of 1985-86 was a very unique group. Doug Kimball, advisor, said, "This year's staff showed the difference from previous ones by the theme and pictures selected." Danielle McDaniel added, "The photographers were more geared to getting their job done than in the past. They produced some really good, quality pictures. I enjoyed working with them."

Annual staff was different from other classes. The staff produced an annual costing over $20,000, that their fellow students will keep for a lifetime. The class was run mainly by the students, which gave students an experience in learning responsibility while producing a lasting record of RHS. The students left having learned the various skills of graphic layouts, photography, writing copy and captions, getting ads, meeting deadlines, and working with others.

The Blaze Heats Up

The 85-86 first semester Blaze gang.

The Blaze, Redmond's student newspaper, improved greatly this year. The dedicated staff worked long hours after school to perfect stories and pages, and make the Blaze as appealing as possible.

Issues came out about once a month. The process was as follows: Stories were assigned and reporters and photographers spent about two weeks writing and investigating. All of the materials were then sent to the Northshore Citizen for printing.

Page editors then went to work laying out the pages. This experience, called "la-tenight", was often hectic and lasted many long hours after school.

Student teacher Cathy Pogue, who acted as Journalism advisor, said, "I have never seen such a good high school newspaper!"

"Scandalous" was the word for a few Blaze issues in 1985-86. A editorial on bisexuality written by Michelle Dunlap and a "sex shop" article by Steele Sykes and Tim Heyes raised some eyebrows in and out of Redmond High. Reporter Vaughn

Mom, Dad, and Julie, the best family in the world, thank you for all you've done for me and being so understanding. I love you!

Erin-The first graders from hell. What's it been 13 yrs? I've loved it! How about you, me, and Derek ordering some pizza?

Erin, I can't find the money, despite counting it. Erin, your toenail's on fire! Listen, it's talking. P.S. Hope everything works out between you and Bob!

Jennifer-Stripper-So many road trips. You and your midnight pony rides. Daytime horseback rides. Jennifer, I don't think those leaves quite cut it for clothing. Yet, that potato sack looks a lot better! P.S. Do you have any friends? (I'm all out) Kim-BoBo, I really wish you'd stop throwing so many insane parties! I can't roll up the window! So many trips down the lake road ... But never the side you live on?

Clare-Don't walk in the flowers! Nice car!

Della-Wanna go for a roadtrip in the beast?

Impresario, I will never be able to love a horse as much as I did you. No horse will ever be able to compare to you. I miss you. To all you sophomores in drivers ed, a little word from the wise.

Parts of the car -

Sunvisor-use for blocking our traffic lights.

Radio-play at full volume at all times.

Hood ornament-use as a sight for lining up pedestrians and other targets.

Horn-honk often to let the world know you exist, especially late at night.

Clock-set ahead so you'll always be in a hurry.

And remember, never let anyone get in front of you!

Apple Blossom '83, '84, '85, and looking forward to '86!

Pete-the only loyal boyfriend I've ever had-to bad you're a bird! Larry's party ... why are Erin and Kim in the bushes? Why are they dodging parked cars? The find in my neighbor's garden, rafting on the lake, going to Western for the weekend ... Erin am I making you nervous? Dave, thanks for all the good times. Tolo '86. How much fun can Mike and Debbie have? Triumph TR3A, TR7 and still collecting! The Monday night fiestal Mom, I think it's pretty tacky of Dad's friends to leave beer caps in the plants too! AD-you loose! Seriously, thanks for being such a great friend. It's really meant a lot to me. Due to circumstances beyond our control, through the garage door the truck did roll. But the damage did not stop here, for now the TR has a remodeled rear. DJ

Congratulations

Time is always time.
It never stops.
It waits for no one,
but you can wait for it.
Time has its own pace.
Its even tick cannot be interrupted.
Time is eternal.
Time is a measurement everyone uses.

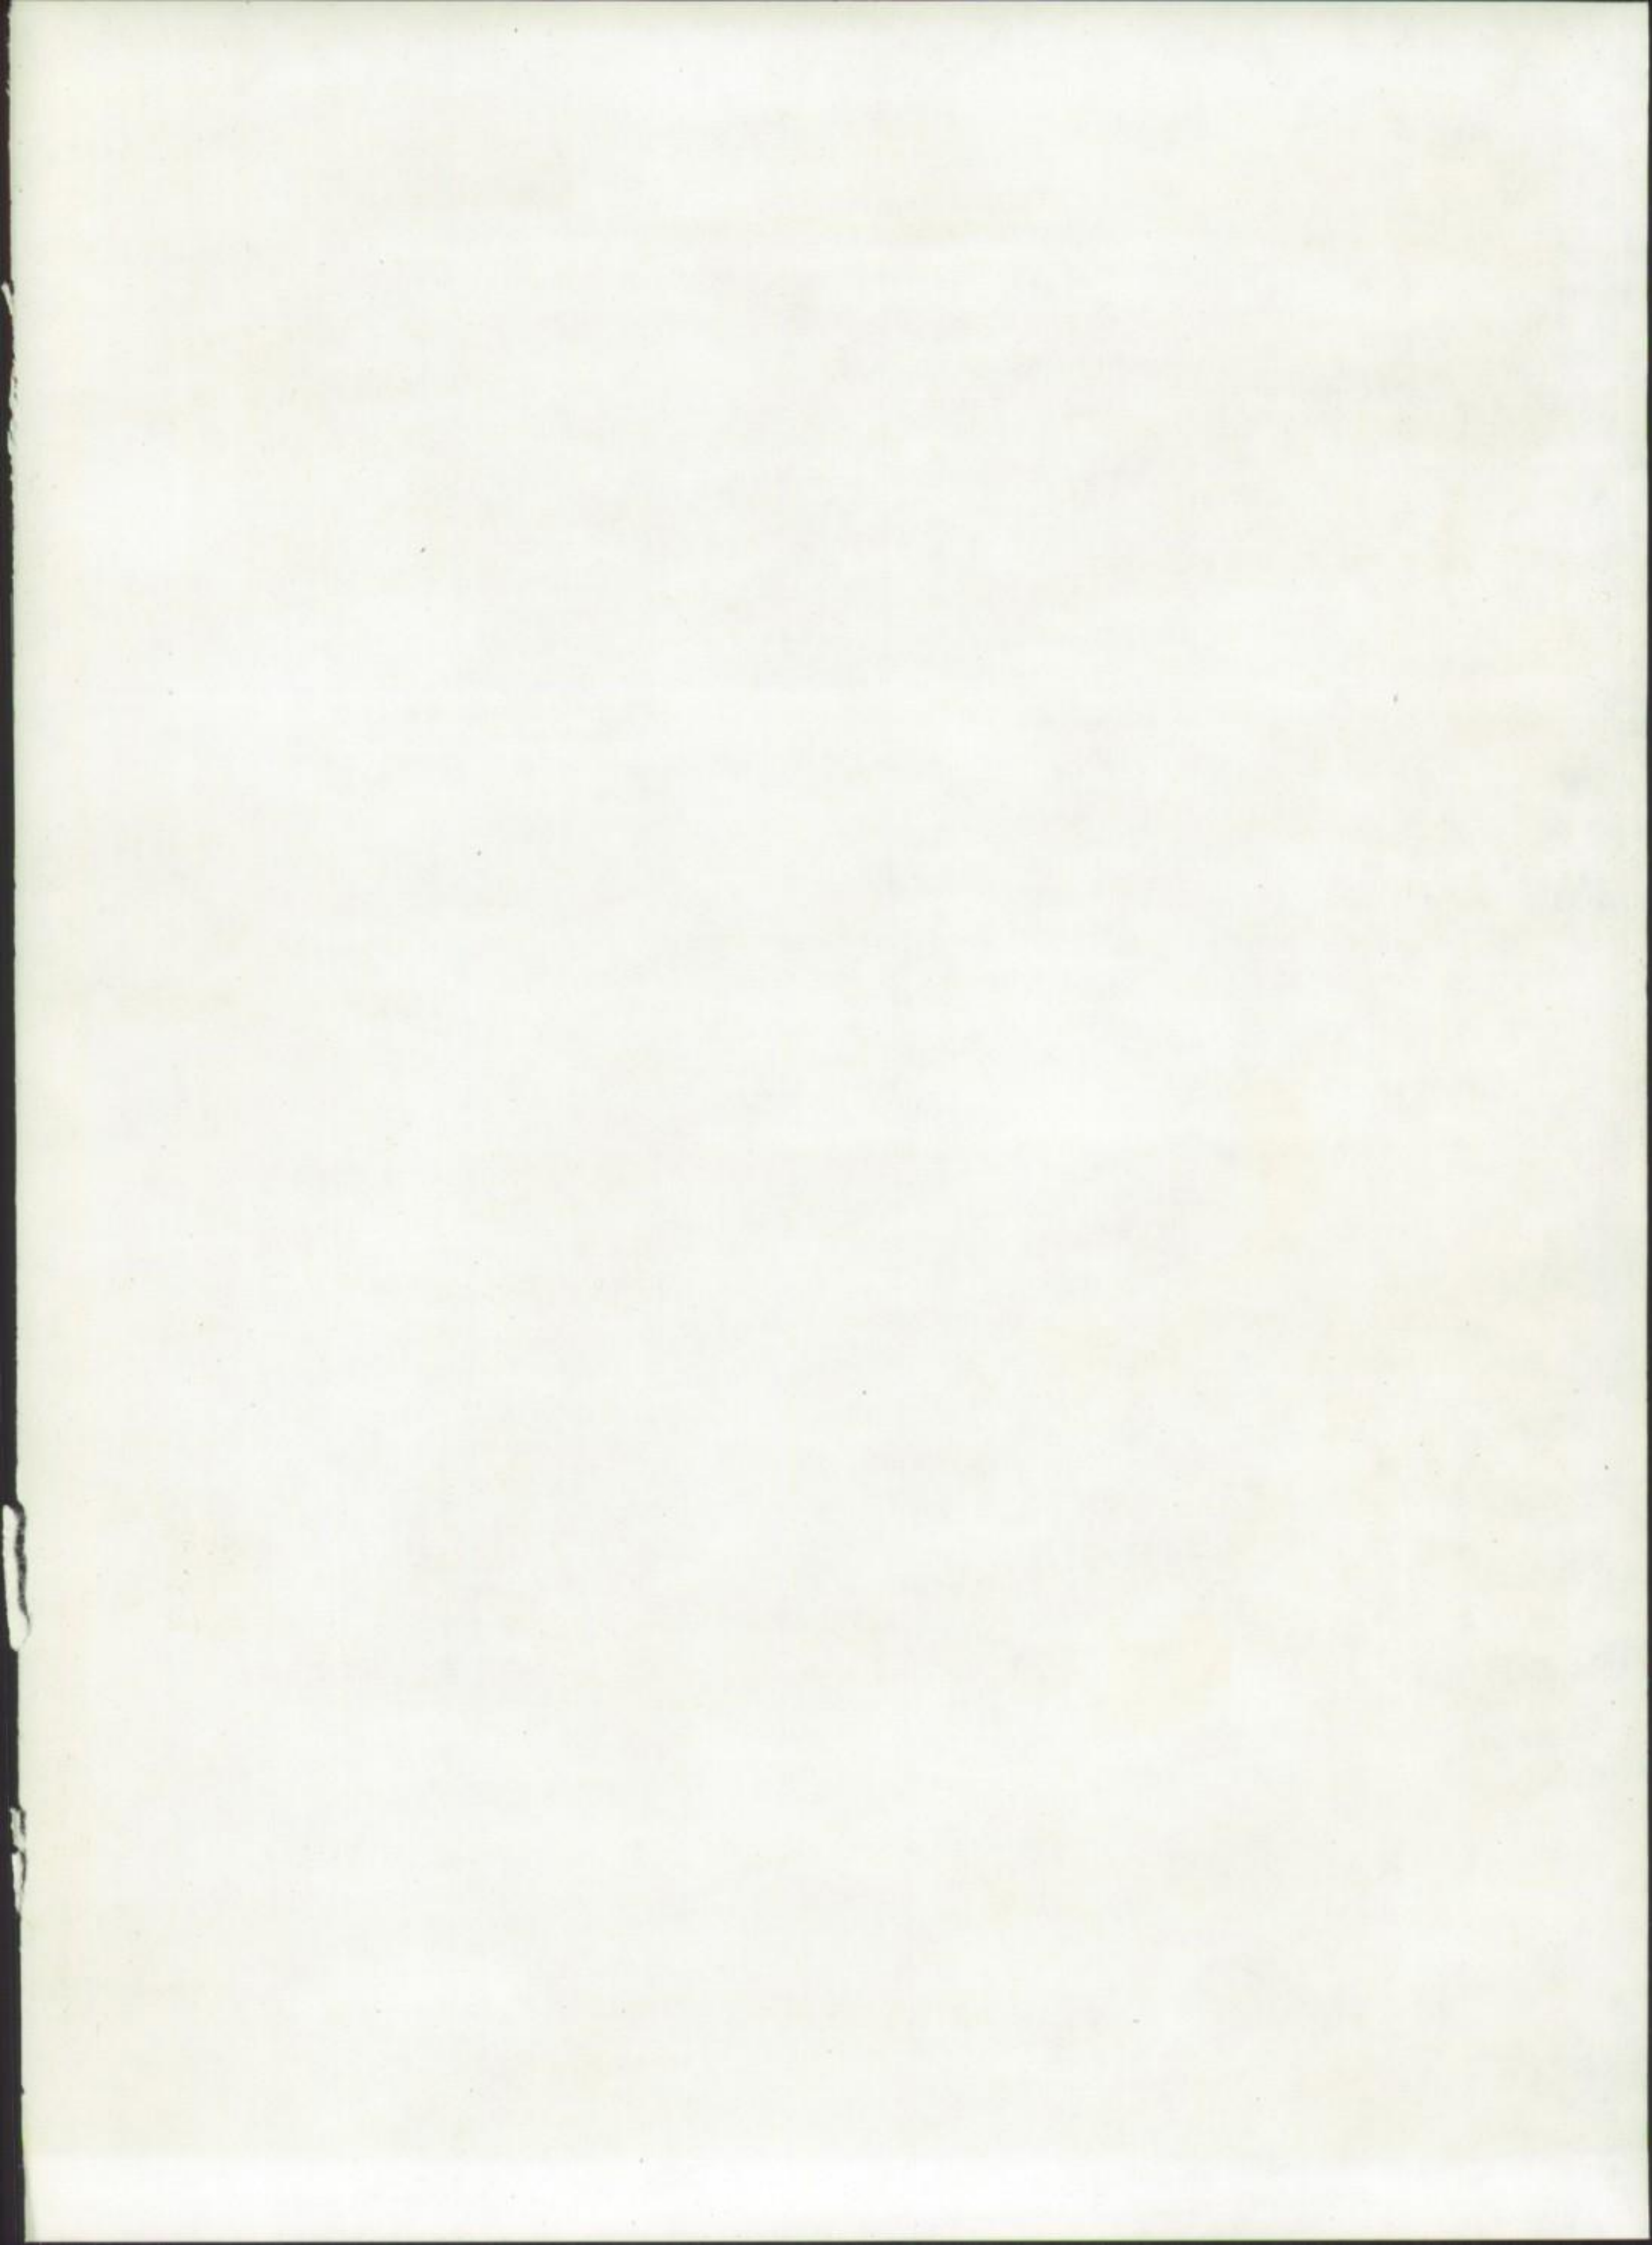

"How much time have I got?"
"Is it time yet?"
Time cannot be adjusted.
We all must follow its course.
It cannot be tailored to fit our personal needs.
Time waits for no one.

Ingrid,

So, how are you doing. I'm doing pretty good. Too bad your a senior, that means you'll be gone next year and I can't say Hi to you in the Halls But, I'm really glad I met you. - Nice eh (the old standard) Maybe sometime you and Steve might get together and I can see you again. Go to UCLA then maybe you can show me around if I go there. I just want to go to school in Cal. hopefully But anyway. Have a sweet summer (the old standard)

Love Ya,

Ingrid - Hey babe It's time to go. I've known you since our sophomore year and I must say that our first impression was quite wonderful.
It is that night
at James house to the front seat of my car that that impression was cool.
But
That shit is over and I'm beginning to really get to know you now.
I use to just look at you but now I can talk to you as well
who it's a trip

Having Deca with you was cool. I thine we should've talked a little more.
But that's ok my second impression was different.

Ingrid-
I'm glad I got to know you, you are a very nice person. I'm really glad to have that you will be going to Western next year!
We will have to keep in touch be in the summer so we will hope your dorm is all so close then we can hard, but the something on up there call me this time!! Health was fun!
I mean it! Summer! was fun!

me tell you that
Prom was a Blast.
You looked lovely.
I think Scott and you looked really cute together.
I'm not sure but maybe it's to do with things (For him were out but you mainly)
still looking good.
I had a Blast with Angie and I couldn't think
